

A Level Art and Design Bridging Task

Produce an artwork in response to the theme, Concealed and Revealed.

What is concealed and what is revealed, and the tensions between the two, are essential elements in a work of art and design.

Your approach may embrace a number of different ideas and image making techniques.

You are encouraged to experiment and to be creative in interpreting the theme by responding in individual and highly personal ways.

You will be assessed on your visual language skills – the ability to effectively use line, shape, tone, colour, pattern, texture, form, space, to express your interpretation of the theme.

You will need to carry out some research and development of ideas in order to be successful in this task, such as artist research, notes, sketches, photos, drawn studies, etc.

Please submit your development work with your final art work.

Good luck!
